G. A. R. ENCAMPMENT.

Election of Officers-Col. Albert D. Shaw of Watertown, N. Y., Chosen Commander-in-Chief. PHILADELPHIA, Pa., Sept. 7.

Shortly after the opening of to-day's session of the national encampment of the Grand Army of the Republic, Judge Leo Rassieur, of St. Louis, Mo., with-drew his name as a candidate for the mce of commander-in-chief. Judge Rassieur, in a speech that aroused unounded enthusiasm among the dele bounded enthusiasm among the esse-gates, declined to oppose Col. Abert D. Shaw, of Watertown, N. X., and re-quested that the vote of file encamp-ment be given to Col. Shaw, As he took his seat after withdrawing from the contest he was cheered to the echo and cries of "Rassieur for" 1900" were heard in all parts of the Grand opera house.

house. Acting on the suggestion of Judge Rassleur, the encampment elected Col. Shaw by acclamation. Immediately after his election, Col. Shaw sent a tel-egram to his wife at Watertown, say-

Shaw by acclamation. Immediately after his election, col. Shaw sent a telegram to his wife at Watertown, saying:

"Elected by acclamation."

The encampment was called to order at 10 o'clock by Commander-in-chief Johnson, and almost immediately the delegates proceeded to nominate candidates for the various offices.

Past Commander-in-Chief William Warner, of Missouri, segured the floor and presented the name of Judge Leo. Hassieur, of St. Louis. He was followed by Department Commander Joseph W. Key, of New York, who nominated Col. Albert D. Shaw, of Watertown, N. Y. Captain Thomas L. Sample, of Allegheny City, Pa., seconded the nomination of Col. Shaw, and the Ohio, South Dakota and Vermont delegates almost made known their intention of voting for the New York man. Judge Rassieur asked the privilege at speaking, which was accorded him. He said that he had not sought the office of commander-in-chief, his candidacy being the result of the work of his friends. The desire of the encampment, he said, seemed to be to cleet Col. Shaw, and he felt that it was but proper for him to withdraw from the contest in order that the business of the meeting should not be delayed. He then asked that the entira-toxe of the encampment be turned ever to Col. Shaw and that the New York candidate be elected by acclamations.

After Col. Shaw's election, the delegations proceeded to make jupislications for the office of senior vice-commander, and the name of Irving, Robbins, of Indiana, was presented. Fat this point the business of the encampment was interrupted by the arrival of delegations proceeded to make jupislications and some selection of the remaining foliners.

It was expected that arter the visiting delegations had left the pension question would be taken up. Instead, however, the delegates proceeded to the elected senior vice-commander. William H. Baker, of Lyuki Mass., was elected senior vice-commander. William H. Baker, of Lyuki Mass., was elected surgeon-general.

THE VETERANS

At Philadelphia—The Significance of the Grand Encampment. Washington Star: The national en-compment of the Grand Army of the Republic is always an interesting occasion. It always calls up a thousand giorious memories, and always emphain a) the lessons of patriotism and giorious memories, and always emphasica) the lessons of patriotism and duty. But this year the occasion is particularly interesting and instructive. What old these veterans in their justy youth stand for? What flag did they carry? Whose orders did they take and execute? What deeds did they accomplish which make them still, thirty-five pairs later, the objects of so much respect and affection?

The story is familiar in every defail. In 1861 there were mon who scoffed at the bare suggestion that this government had the power to save itself. What? Corre a sovereign state of the Union? Invade a state with federal troops and bring it back life force to the discharge of national obligations? Could people so treated ever be relied upon as citizens? Was it not one of the cardinal principles of our institutions that "governments derive their just powers from the consent of the soverned?" Could patriotism be exacted at the muzzle of a rifle? Was the Union anything but a bond holding together soveries states, but only by unanimous consent? Could not any one of them withdraw at its pleasure?

We all know how, and by whom, these questions were answered. He was a great man, the greatest, in some particulars, this country has ever produced. He was a great man, the greatest, in some particulars, this country has ever produced. He was a great man, the greatest, in some particulars, this country has ever produced. He was a great man the greatest, in some particulars and filled the south, with hundreds of thousands of men, carrying the stars and stripes and planting it and sustaining it with blood everywhere. At last the deed was done. The cause was won. The south, broken and devastated by four years of war, that defered as a free commanded universal admiration, was restored by force to 'the Union. resistance which for courage and sac-rifice commanded universal admiration, was restored by force to the Union. What it had been said could not be done stood accomplished; and the great leader who had been so vilely ismpoon-ed by copperheads and skulkers in the rear now took his place among the he-roes of all time.

rear now took his place among the heroes of all time. Has that work been a failure? Ask the people of the south. Ask General Wheeler, General Fithugh Lee, General Stephen D. Lee, General John B. Gorden, any or all of the surviving leaders of the lost cause. The Union not only possessed the power to preserve itself, but exercised it so as to win a renewal of the loyalty of those who had railsed the standard of revolt against it. Who says, therefore, that what was done in the south cannot for a like reason be done in the Philippine Islands? Shall the government which southcarrenessed to the suthority in a Islands? Shall the government wh enforced respect for its authority is section peopled by men who in it best estate have no superiors halt; stammer and take the back track bet the Filipinos?

The Carmel Cure.

Cleveland Plain Dealer: There is a young man in town who is a candy lend and has a habit of carrying cara-nels and other dainties about in his mels and other dainties about in his pockets upon all occasions.

Of course the girls of his acquaintance "caught on" to this amiable weakness some time ago and have profited by it to such an extent that he soon found his caramel bills growing with unpleasant rapidity.

At lact it became more than he could stand, and he set about to effect a cure. It wasn't long before an idea came, and he went forth smilling to carry out his plan of action. That night he called upon his counting—nice girls, whom he knows very well, and who have profited first than any one else from his love of sweets.

They were on the porch, as usual, and

They were on the porch, as usual, and he had no more than got comforfably settled, when the youngest and prettlest sidled up and silpred her hand deep down into his pocket.

"What brand have you got to-night, Tommy?" she murmured, and then "Oh, goody, varamels! And what beauties! Here girls," and with not so much as "by your leave" she took a handful and tossed some to her sisters.

There were two little rapturous "Ohs!" and then, in another minute, three spilutering yells of surprised and angry protests, while three sois of crisp summer skirts seraped nest bim in a mad rush to the house, from which soon came scurus and languages which first set the Laughty Tommy into fits of laughter and then made him scurry off to avoid the wrath to come.

What do you suppose the wretch had done? Got a nice amouth piece of chewing tobacco and cut it into caramel shaped blocks.

The market succumbed to the combined influence of a hardening rate for call money, and the depression on foreign stock markets on account of the gathering war cloud in South Africa. A few of the highly speculative industrial specialties were marked up in the early dealings and at different times during the day in an effort to resist the decline. The attempt proved unavailing to overcome the depression in the general list and the manipulative stocks in some cases finally weakened, though a few retained a net advance. Tenneasse Coal was marked up a point at the opening, but that was the highest of the day. The hardness of money here did not avail to lower the rate of ster-ling exchange, in view of the increase in discounts in London, which also had the effect of raising the rate of sterling exchange in Paris and Berlin. Lon-don's sales of about 20,000 shares of stocks here helped to keep up the exchange rate. It is apparent that under present conditions abroad a considerably higher rate for money will be required to induce imports of gold.
